

Dear FCC Commissioners:

As a former radio journalist, I strongly urge you all to RETAIN the FCC's CURRENT media ownership rules. Media monopoly limits journalists' abilities to do their jobs in two-ways: First, limited resources (usually due to profit margins) equals short deadlines, weak stories and shallow interviews; Second, minority (i.e. people of color and people with/in small numbers) voices get lost within and among these huge media conglomerates. While, I could say more... I don't want to confuse anyone with a short attention span.

"Retain the Rules" -- Mr. Marconi would want you to!
